

Media and English 2

In this course students will undertake six units of work in the study and analysis of Media. This course continues the study of media where media and English 1 left off. Analysis will be more in depth and students will have the opportunity to study in some detail issues affecting Media today.

Some of the units of study in this class:

- Bias in the Media
- Gender in the Media
- The internet
- Film and the Novel
- Advertising
- Race in the Media

Students will be expected to participate in lively discussion and debate as well as complete written, oral and project based work. Students are expected to come to class prepared and should always carry a strong work ethic with them. This is a Media and English class and therefore literary analysis is part of the course load.

1 credit

